COSTUMES, food and people from all corners of the globe converged on Hammond Park Primary School for a community global picnic last week.

A range of activities including the Clontarf Aboriginal Dancers, Irish dancing, singing performances and the creation of a Harmony Tree kept the students entertained during the belated Harmony Week event, with the day culminating in a celebration picnic where students and their families were invited to bring a plate of food representing their culture to share with friends.

Hammond Park PS teacher Andrea McFadden said the event gave students the chance to learn more about the different cultures within their community.
