BEING A PARENT

Sarah* participated in the Being a Parent course in Term 1. She feels incredibly thankful to the Parent Facilitators who supported her in gaining an increased understanding of her own emotions and how to communicate effectively with her children. Participating in the Being a Parent course was a unique experience because it was facilitated by local parents, with local knowledge and this made Sarah feel at ease in the learning environment. The skills learned during the course have supported a strong relationship with her two boys, which has in turn created a harmonious home environment – one where her eldest child (age 11) willingly helps around the house.

After such a positive experience in the Being a Parent course, Sarah is now participating in training to become a Parent Facilitator and support other families in the local community. *Name changed

EMPOWERING WOMEN

Each for Equal was the powerful gender equality theme for this year's International Women's Day. Connecting Community for Kids (CCK) hosted an intimate on the couch event celebrating women in Kwinana. The panel discussion and personal stories raises awareness and brought us together on the achievements and struggles of women seeking stronger voices.

Ravneer wants to support other women in the community who are facing domestic violence, abuse and toxic relationships. Platforms to raise awareness and to share her story, such as the CCK International Women's Day, are important to empower women and help them overcome situations like the one she has lived and survived. The International Women's Day event also increased her confidence and built new connections across the local community.

"When women put their mind to something, they have the power to heal and change the world."

PROMOTING SELF-CARE FOR MOTHERS

Ngala offers a Pamper Day at the Child and Parent Centre Calista once a term to promote social connections between parents/mothers as well as self-care and maternal health. In March, we invited 6 mums with their toddlers to celebrate the International Women's Day with us in a special Pamper Day session. While the children were playing away in the creche, the mums relaxed and reconnected with their inner self, and with some new friends over cute crafts and lovely treats.

"I don't relax enough.. I am glad to hear other mums are the same."
